About Rome: The Eternal City

ROME, Caput Mundi during the Roman Empire, capital of Italy since 1870. Rome is the home of the Catholic Church and the Italian government, is placed on the banks of the Tiber, there where the river, running weakly among the seven hills, creates vast meanders which originate little plains.

Rome's cityscape is an exciting sight. Ancient icons such as the Colosseum, Roman Forum and Pantheon recall the city's golden age as caput mundi (capital of the world), while monumental basilicas tell of its history as seat of the Catholic Church. Lording it over the skyline, St Peter's Basilica towers over the Vatican, testifying to the ambition of Rome's Renaissance popes and the genius of its game-changing architects. Ornate piazzas and showy fountains add a baroque flourish to the city's captivating streets.

Few cities can rival Rome's astonishing artistic heritage. Throughout history, the city has showcased in the great upheavals of Western art, drawing top artists and inspiring them to push the boundaries of creative achievement. The result is a city awash with precious treasures. Ancient statues adorn world-class museums; Byzantine mosaics and Renaissance frescoes dazzle in art-rich churches; baroque facades flank medieval piazzas. Stroll through the center and without even trying you'll come across masterpieces by the titans of European art – sculptures by Michelangelo, paintings by Caravaggio, frescoes by Raphael and fountains by Bernini

Random Facts about Rome:

- The first-ever shopping mall was constructed by Emperor Trajan in Rome. It comprised of several levels and more than 150 outlets that sold everything ranging from food and spices to clothes.
- Rome's first university, La Sapienza (est. A.D. 1303), is the largest in Europe and the second largest in the world.
- The Colosseum, originally the Flavian Amphitheatre, took its name from the Latin word colossus, which means "giant statue." A huge statue of Nero stood near the stadium, giving it its nickname.

Rome's cityscape is an exhilarating spectacle. A trip to Rome is about relaxing into the city's Mediterranean rhythms and idling around the picturesque streets
