About Venue:

Bangkok, the capital and primary port of Thailand, stands out as the lone cosmopolitan hub in a nation predominantly composed of small towns and villages. Serving as the cultural and commercial epicenter of Thailand, Bangkok is strategically positioned on the Chao Phraya River delta, approximately 25 miles (40 km) from the Gulf of Thailand. Historically, the city was bifurcated into Krung Thep on the east bank and Thon Buri on the west, interconnected by multiple bridges. In 1971, these two entities were amalgamated into a single city province under a unified municipal government. The city and the provinces surrounding it were combined again in 1972 to form Bangkok Metropolis, also known as Krung Thep Maha Nakhon.

The name "Bangkok," commonly used by foreigners, is thought to originate from an ancient moniker predating the city's establishment—referring to the village or district (bang) of wild plums (makok). Locally, the Thai refer to their capital as Krung Thep, the initial component of its elaborate official name that translates to "the City of Gods, the Great City, the Emerald Buddha's residence, the impregnable city (of Ayutthaya) of God Indra, the world's grand capital blessed with nine precious gems, and the joyful city teeming with enormous Royal Palaces Which Resemble the Heavenly Abode Wherein Dwell the Reincarnated Gods, a City Given by Indra and Built by Vishnukarm. Past Event Report

About Past Event:

The 5th International Conference on Gynecology and Obstetrics was successfully held on November 03–04, 2025, in the dynamic city of Dubai, UAE, under the theme “New Dimensions in Gynecology: Bridging Gaps, Advancing Futures.” The conference brought together distinguished professionals, researchers, and practitioners from around the world to share expertise, exchange innovative ideas, and discuss emerging developments in the field. The event served as a valuable platform for collaborative learning and global networking, leaving a significant impact on the international gynecology and obstetrics community.

The event welcomed participants from various regions, creating opportunities for vibrant knowledge exchange through keynote addresses, workshops, poster presentations, research discussions, and interactive panel sessions. The conference also highlighted groundbreaking studies and forward-thinking practices aimed at advancing gynecological and obstetric care for the future.

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to the organizing committee for their dedicated efforts that contributed to the success of this conference. Special thanks are extended to the session chairs, Dr. Shamima Yasmin (Bangladesh) and Dr. Somnuk Apiwantanagul (Thailand), for their valuable contributions in enriching the scientific sessions. We also appreciate all speakers, delegates, and participants who traveled from across the globe to engage in meaningful discussions and share their research expertise. Your active participation and enthusiasm were instrumental in shaping the event’s achievements.
